

Crystal Hogue is the President and CEO of CHM Bible Theatre productions Incorporated. She oversees the operations of this organization to ensure high quality productions are presented successfully according to the mission. She directs and coordinates community events and plays presented at theaters, churches, schools and community organizations. She is a motivational public speaker, author, fitness instructor, playwright, singer and songwriter, radio personality, Bible Teacher and Women's Conference Speaker. She has established relationships with community and executive leaders, pastors and government leaders within various communities. Her talents and skills include directing, teaching, writing, singing, songwriting, managing, process improvement, quality control and has credentials in the fundamentals of acting and directing. Crystal has obtained a bachelor's degree in Theology and a master's degree in Business Administration (MBA), specializing in management. She is also an Alumni Mentor for AIU and holds a substitute teacher's license for the state of Illinois as well as an international ordained ministerial license. She has taught classes in various industries and served in the non-profit sector for many years. She also worked in financial services and business administration as a manager and specialist in churches, healthcare, insurance, safety, and education; managing projects in various areas as well as a diverse group of people. Crystal works as the Executive Director of Champaign County Christian Health Center and is happily married to Charles Hogue, Principal of a private special needs school.